(1) The summary risk indicator (SRI) is a guide to the level of risk of this product compared to other products. It shows how likely it is that the product will lose money because of movements in the market or because we are not able to pay you. It ranges from 1 (low risk) to 7 (high risk). This indicator is not constant and will change according to the fund's risk profile. The lowest category does not mean risk-free. Historical data, such as that used to calculate the SRI, may not be a reliable indication of the fund's future risk profile. There is no guarantee that the investment objectives in terms of risk will be achieved.

Portfolio manager comment

In aggregate, sector allocation decisions contributed to relative performance during the month. A benchmark relative underweight allocation to the utilities sector and an overweight allocation to the diversified manufacturing sector contributed positively to results. An overweight allocation to the health care sector detracted.

Security selection decisions were the primary driver of positive benchmark relative performance during the month. The largest contributors to security selection were in the energy, chemicals, and technology sectors. Within the technology sector, the largest contributing position was our exposure to Seagate Technology. Seagate is a leading data storage and hard drive producer and we believe that they will be one of the chief beneficiaries of the expansive AI buildout over the coming years. We continue to maintain exposure in your portfolio.

In contrast, security selection in the diversified manufacturing and pharmaceuticals sectors detracted from relative performance. The overall largest detracting issuer, also within technology, was our underweight exposure to CoreWeave. CoreWeave is a hyperscale AI infrastructure provider focused on GPU-accelerated cloud services. While we recognize strong demand tailwinds from AI workloads, we are cautious given execution risk, customer concentration, capital intensity, and a still-evolving profitability profile.
