(1) The summary risk indicator (SRI) is a guide to the level of risk of this product compared to other products. It shows how likely it is that the product will lose money because of movements in the market or because we are not able to pay you. It ranges from 1 (low risk) to 7 (high risk). This indicator is not constant and will change according to the fund's risk profile. The lowest category does not mean risk-free. Historical data, such as that used to calculate the SRI, may not be a reliable indication of the fund's future risk profile. There is no guarantee that the investment objectives in terms of risk will be achieved.

SUSTAINABLE REPORT – METHODOLOGY

ODDO BHF AM considers that measuring the environmental, social and governance impact of an investment is an essential step in disseminating good practices in ESG integration. To do this, it is imperative to have reliable, simple quantitative criteria (no reprocessing) and to allow comparison between portfolios regardless of their composition (large vs midcaps, geographical and sectoral diversity).

The choice of indicators is therefore crucial for the relevance of impact measurement. The data for the environmental indicators come from our external non-financial analysis provider, MSCI. We systematically indicate the availability of the data at the level of the portfolio and its benchmark.

Carbon metrics methodology: We updated our methodology of carbon intensity calculation. Starting January 31st, 2023, when reported carbon values are unavailable or inconsistent, estimated carbon values are used. The estimations are based on average carbon value (scope 1+2 emissions) of sectoral peers as a function of revenues

MONTHLY MANAGEMENT COMMENT

Like equity markets as a whole, the listed real estate sector bounced back strongly, even if it couldn't make up for the fall posted in March. The US-Israeli intervention in Iran is still ongoing, and oil prices rose further as shipping in the Straits of Hormuz remained blocked despite a ceasefire. The geopolitical instability linked to this war fuelled market uncertainty, partly explaining why bond yields stayed high in all regions.

First-quarter results also influenced the markets in April. Most listed property companies reported solid rental growth and confirmed their annual forecasts. Others expect that good rental trends and index-linking will offset higher financing costs, and any increase in construction costs is likely to be limited in 2026.

In the portfolio, we took advantage of German property company TAG Immobilien's strong rally to take profits, having previously strengthened the position at some attractive price levels. Meanwhile, we built up our stake in medical property company Aedifica due to its defensive qualities.

We also continued to strengthen certain positions in the logistics segment, especially Dutch property company CTP, whose share price had been particularly badly hit by the outlook for 2026, which investors considered disappointing. However, in its quarterly results, CTP reported a positive start to the year with record rental activity, and confirmed its forecasts. This helped to reassure investors in this logistics segment, as did quarterly reports from SEGRO (UK), WDP (Belgium) and Argan (France). The latter faced a major refinancing challenge at the start of the year, successfully issuing a EUR 500 million bond to a wide range of French and international institutional investors. However, to achieve the interest rate it wanted, it had to shorten the maturity of the bond to 3.5 years. This issue clearly illustrates that issuing capacity remains intact, even if market conditions have deteriorated significantly since the start of the year with events in the Middle East.

Elsewhere, we contributed our shares in German housing company Grand City to a public exchange offer from its parent company Aroundtown, which brought us back into line with the benchmark. As a reminder, we had taken profits at a share price above EUR 3 last year. We strengthened at attractive levels (between EUR 2.11 and EUR 2.64) as the company's refinancing problems receded and its firmer grip on Grand City improved its recurring revenue.

We have little clarity on how the Middle Eastern conflict will end, but the longer it drags on, the more widespread the economic impact will be, and the conflict has already been going on for two months. Downward revisions to growth forecasts are in the news, with Germany halving its estimate for this year.

At central bank level, both the Fed and ECB have opted to maintain the status quo for now, although the latter is still factoring the inflation risk from the Middle Eastern conflict into its projections. Given the current pressure on long-term interest rates, the market is already anticipating that the ECB will raise key interest rates at least twice in the coming months.
